HENRY CHAMPION.

1. Henry Champion emigrated from Old England to the American Colonies and settled at Saybrook, Connecticut, where he is found as early as 1647.

About 1660 the first known records of the town of Saybrook were begun, wherein were described the lands of the different inhabitants. With the exception of George Fenwick, the number of acres allotted to each person seems to have been small.

The lands of Henry Champion are recorded as follows:

"One parsell lying on the East side of the Great River Con. whereon a house now standeth containing by estimation six ackers, the ends abutting against the highwaie North East and South West, the sides abutting against the land of Morgayn Bowers South East and the land of Joseph Jarrit North West." [Say. Rec. p. 10.]

Also: "one parsell in the planting fielde on the East side of the great River Con. by estimation four ackers, the end abutts against Blacke Halle River N. East, and against the greate Marsh South West, the side abutts against the Land of Will. Bechous North West." [id.]

Prior to 1660, and previously to the foregoing record being entered, he had sold his lot "lying within the town plott" in Saybrook to Jonathan Rudd. This lot contained five roods, and "the one side abuts against the highway North and the other side abuts against the lands of Thomas Mirall and William Waller South, the one end abuts against the land of Thomas Rood East and the other end abuts against the highway West." The lot thus appears to have been the corner lot situated on the south side of the East and West road, and on the East side of the North and South road.

After having assisted in the development of Saybrook, Henry Champion removed with his family to the east side of the Connecticut River and became one of the first and most active founders of Lyme, being propounded a freeman of that town on May 12th, 1670. The records of the town were begun in 1674, and on June 18th of that year the following entries were made:

"Henory Champean's Lott one the necke beyond the little stony brook, bounded east by the highwaie to a little tree by the marsh fronting north to the highwaie, west and south by the marsh, contayning aighteen ackers more or less; Henry Champean allowing John Laye Junior tow ackers one the other side of the River adjoyning to John Laye's medow."

"Henory Champean's meadow upon Stony Brook three ackers more or less, bounded East by his own land, West and North by the commons, South by the medow of Renald Marvines." [It appears that Henry Champion and Renald Marvin had a dispute about this land which was subsequently settled by an agreement dated Sept. 8, 1696.—Lyme Town Rec. Book II, p. 130.]

"Henory Champeon Senior's medow upon Russ oylande containing three ackers, three quarders more or less bounded west upon the medow of Renald Mervines, Southwardly upon the slow, north by the Coave, eastwardly by the meadow of John Laye Senior."

"Henory Champean's medow one his home Lotte contayning tow ackers and three quarders more or less, bounded South one the Cricke and the land of Peter Pratte, North one his own uplande, Sow West upon the Cove."

"Henory Champean's home Lott that he bought of Beltishaser De Wolfe, contayning ten ackers of upland more or less, bounded east one the highwaie, northerly on John Laye Senior, and westerly upon the Cove, southerly upon the medow of his own and the mouth of the Cricke."

"Henory Champean's Calf Pasture Land containing twenty ackers more or less bounded north upon the highwaie, east upon the commons, Southwardly upon the land of Richard Smith, westerly on the Commons, with one dwelling house beulte upon it."

"Henory Champean hath laid out to him at Bigg Medow tow ackers and a half more or less, bounded South on the medow of Widow Waller at a pine tree, Easterly by a cricke, northerly by the River and a little oylande."

The foregoing records are dated June 18, 1674, and are recorded in the First Book of the Town Records of Lyme on pages 23 and 24, under attestation of "Mathew Griswould and Renald Mervines," who were the town surveyors. The lands of the other inhabitants are similarly recorded about the same time.

From the following document it appears that Henry Champion was one of the first proprietors of the town of Lyme.

"Know all men by these presents that I John Lay Senior of Lyme being unacquinted with the bounds of the Lotte which was formerly Henory Champean, Desired Mr Mathew Griswold Sen of Lyme he being one of the men that Laid out the lott at the first, that he would be held to lay out four ackers to Thomas Lee of Lyme I having sold it to him. Henory Champean also, being the first proprietor of the land above s^d consents unto and allow of Thomas Lee's having the above s^d four ackers of land according as it is now laid out by Mr Mathew Griswould as above s^d.

Henry Champion resided in the house he had built on the hill just east of the meeting house and near the old burying-ground. Like the majority of settlers in a new country he probably occupied himself chiefly with agriculture. He also owned some live stock, for "Henry Champeon Senior his eare mark for all sorts of cretures is a crop one the off eare with a half penny cutt out one the under side of the same eare." Recorded March 24, 1673-4. [L. T. R. Bk. I, p. 5.] The same mark had been previously allowed him in Saybrook as appears by the following entry [Say. Rec. p. 39]: "The mark that Henry Champeon puts upon his cattle and hogs is the top of the eare took square off and a pece took out under the same eare after this manner "."

On March 12, 1671, representatives of the town of New London entered a complaint against Henry Champion and a number of his fellow townsmen before the county court at Hartford. The subject of the ill-feeling between the towns was a strip of land lying between Bride Brook and Niantic River, including Black Point in Lyme. Both towns claimed the land by virtue of previous grants, and both had reserved a portion of meadow at Black Point for the use of the ministry. The Court fined New London £9 and Lyme £5, which were afterwards remitted.

Henry Champion's name occurs frequently in the early records, usually as the grantor or grantee of land. On Sept. 2, 1664, Tobiah Colls (sic) of Saybrook makes his will, which is witnessed by "Henry Champion, John Comstocke, his marke, John Borden." [County Court Rec., Vol. 3, p. 9; at Hartford.] The three witnesses and a number of their friends are beneficiaries under the will.

Sir Edmund Andros took into his hands the government of the Colony of Connecticut in October 1687, and on August 27, 1688, by his direction was taken "An Accor of the lystable Estates in the towne of Lyme."

In amount his assessment stands twenty-sixth out of seventy, but his estate had been somewhat reduced by frequent presents to his children. Under the date Nov. 12, 1706, is "Henry Champion Senior's deed of gift to his grandson Henry Champion, eldest son of his son Henry Champion. Part of his home Lot situate on Meeting House Hill containing four acres of upland and swamp, with all the appurtenances, etc.," and "said Henry was not to put any tenant on this tract during the lifetime of his grandfather or his wife Deborah" who signed the deed of consent "as per marriage agreement."

The first knowledge which we have of the marriage or family of Henry Champion is to be found on page 24 of the "Old Book" of Saybrook Records where is recorded:

From the original it is evident that no part of the foregoing record was made before the date of the last entry—the ink and handwriting being uniform throughout. It was not until about this time that the records were kept systematically in Saybrook. An attempt was then made by the town clerk to enter all previous records, depending either upon his own memory or information derived from members of the several families. These earliest vital statistics are scattered promiscuously through the records of town and land transactions in the "Old Book" of Saybrook Records.

As to the name and family of the wife of Henry Champion no particulars have been gleaned from the early records; she was probably the daughter or sister of one of the early settlers of Saybrook. The exact dates of her birth and death are likewise unknown, so that she has come on, been the mother of children, and passed off the stage and we know nothing more of her. His second wife was a shrewd, scheming woman, for she induced this old man to make a very advantageous marriage settlement upon her, and finally involved him in a law suit with the widow of his eldest son, who resisted the resumption of the gifts her father-in-law had made her husband, and maintained in a very spirited manner the rights of herself and children.

riage, therefore to prevent after trouble it is agreed and concluded that what estate the said Deborah Jones shall carry with her to Henry Champean's habitation that that estate shall remain her own and be at her own disposal her life time and at her death to return to her children [by a former marriage], and not to be accounted the said Henry Champion's estate at his death.

It is also agreed that the aforesaid Henry Champean doth by these presents promise and engage that after the day of this marriage that he will not dispose or alienate by deed of gift or sale, without the consent of the said Deborah Jones, during the said Champean's natural life, that is to say no part of his real estate. It is also to be understood that the abovesaid agreement shall nowise deprive or cutt off the above said Deborah of that part of the aforesaid Henry Champean's estate that is now allowed to the widow after her husband's decease. And for the true performance of the abovesaid we do hereunto set our hands and seals, the day and date being above written.

Immediately below the record of the above instrument are the following entries.

- "Henory Champean Senior was married unto Deborah his now wife 21st March 1697/8."
- "Henory Champean deceased the 17th day of February 1708/9, said to be aged ninety-eight years."*

AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE HEIRS OF HENRY CHAMPION DECEASED:

"We the heirs of Henry Champion deceased of the town of Lyme and Colony of Connecticut do mutually agree to divide the estate of our honored father abovesaid into four equal shares: one to the children of Henry Champion deceased the son of Henry Champion abovesaid. One to the children of Thomas Champion deceased, and one to Sarah Bennet, and one to Mary Huntly, the daughters of the said Henry Champion. And whereas Henry Champion the grand child of Henry Champion is possessed of a house, and land lying southward of his house which was before possessed by his father Henry Champion and confirmed to him by his grandfather Henry Champion, we do all agree and consent that he shall enjoy the same to him and his heirs forever.

And we do hereby bind ourselves and our heirs to abide by and stand to this agreement in a bond of £40, that is to say that the party or parties not acquiescing in and being satisfied with the share or share according as is above expressed shall forfeit and pay £40 in silver money to the parties which do abide by and perform this agreement.

April 4th, 1709.

In testimony whereof we hereunto set our hands.

This meager sketch is all that has been recovered of one whose life however obscure has an interest for his posterity. He was not of base degree, but of independent if not gentle condition; and had left the green homes of old England and her pleasant firesides to war with fierce wild beasts and the still fiercer Pequots, exacting a hard and scanty subsistence from the soil which he had found covered with "a howling wilderness."

Henry Champion resided in his house on Meeting House Hill in Lyme. He acquired several tracts of land by grant from the town and also received land from his father.

Page 32, second foot note.—Since this foot note was printed the "Mather Genealogy" has been published, which repeats the statement made in the Genealogical Register that Samuel Mather married Deborah Champion, but without quoting any other authority.

In the Middletown, Conn., Land Records is recorded a deed dated April 19, 1723, from John Wade. Samuel Mather and his wife Deborah, all of Lyme, and George Wade and Elizabeth Champion (née Wade, see No. 9). It is thus probable that the wife of Samuel Mather was not a Champion but a Wade.
